WASHINGTON, March 25.—In the DEBATE UPRAND JURY SCORES THE THEIR SUFFIFF'S OFFICE.

Sensters Argue that the Would Render Illegal the Farmerslements, Alliance and the Knights of Labor, 'leged.

WASHINGTON, March 25 .- The consideration the bill to declare unlawful trusts and combinations in restraint of trade, gave rise to an interesting debate hold of the question and suppressed those trusts by limiting the amount of capital that can be aggregated in any corporation the trouble would continue.

Mr. Stewarts' Views.

The Farmers' Alliance. The bill, he said, would apply to the Farmers' Alliance and the violent storm, approximating the force of a tornado in some places, swept over the northern, western and central portions of this state Saturday afternoon. Many telegraph wires are still down and satisfactory reports are not yet received.

The loss of life was small. Several negroes in Sumter county were killed and a white man in Sumter county was out of their homes.

Mr. George said that he thought that that was a good point, not only against Mr. Reagan's amendment, but against the original bill. Mr. George referred to the Knights of Labor as another organization that would come within the cope of the bill, because the object of that order was to increase their wages and consequently to increase the cost of

Mr. Reagan thought the first necessity was to strike down trusts and combina-tions, which gave life to Knights of Labor and trades unions. Combinations a Necessary Evil:

Mr. Stewart said that the whole subject was surrounded with difficulties of the gravest kind. Combinations were the gravest kind. Combinations were at the foundation of all civilized society. They seemed to be like the necessary evil of civilization itself. The English people had tried to check them for 100 years and had finally come to the conclusion that legislation on all such subjects simply retarded trade, and there would be the same result in this country. would be the same result in this country if the like thing was attempted. He like last May's flood occurs there will could find no warrant in the constitution for such legislation. were constitutional it would permit the prosecution of the farmers of Iowa or Kansas who combined to hold back their corn until prices were better.

Mr. Blair opposed Mr. Ingalls' amendment as being really a legalization or licensing of the crime of gambling "in futures" on condition of paying a high tax.

Mr. lloar criticised the bill in some of its legal aspects and claimed that it failed to afford any adequate remedy.

Sherman Defends His Bill. Mr. Sherman, replying to Mr. Hoar, said that if the duty on cotton cloths or woolen cloths was a little too low to protect the manufacturers of Massawould demand a remedy in the way of porations, and asked what remedy had the people of New York against that corporation. None at all, he said, except against one of the corporations in-cluded in it. A remedy would never come, he said, from the class of men engaged in such monopolies. He had seen the gradual growth of combina-tions, and knew that their power was municipal affairs took more testimoly seen the gradual growth of combination regard to extra fees extorted by the deputy sheriffs from lawyers and others far official services. Garbage to Be Cremated.

Was impotent to dear with that which it could not prescribe anything but quack medicine, it would prove itself utterly unfitted to perform its duties.

Mr. Vest aimed some sarcastic remarks at Mr. Sherman, denying that there was anything in that senator's career that gave him the right to as-sume that he discovered the only remedy and the only road to success against combinations.

The bill went over without action.
